Administration

I foresee a bright future for the Class of 1964. Its members seem to have the right combination of ability and ambition to carry them well along the road of achievement.

In order that your achievement might be tempered with understanding, may you remember three things. Life is precious, cherish it. The fates are capricious, do not tempt them. Self respect is the one essential to a worthwhile life, earn it.

CLASS HIGHLIGHTS

The year was 1957; the class was the Class of 1964. The world which met us in the seventh grade was the world of the dreaded initiation, which was feared because no one knew which upper classman lurked behind the closed door. This new world was one of politics, for everyone had a chance to campaign to go to the Miller and Rhodes Forum. Also, it was the world of law, because everyone learned how laws were made in the Model General Assembly. We remember that 1957 was a year of beginnings--class dances, class hayrides, and changing classes by a bell. It was the world of things to come. The elementary commencement was only the prelude to the time when we would walk down the aisle in our Senior year.

In the eighth grade we were old hands at that "high school stuff", even though it was our first year of actual high school. There were still new things for us to do such as Junior Varsity sports and deciding which course we should take--academic, commercial, or general.

The ninth grade introduced us to the school clubs and the Varsity sports. The Varsity sports introduced the Athletic Ball, which was probably the first date for most of us. You can imagine how excited we were.

The tenth grade gave us a shocking realization that we needed to work hard in order to have the necessary money for our prom and Senior trip.

The eleventh grade brought the suspense of whether our class rings would ever arrive. There also was much suspense concerning our musical. But the really big "fingernail-biting" suspense was our prom! WORRY, RUSH, and PANIC were the only words that described how we acted before the last piece of decoration went up. And HAPPY, THRILLED, and TIRED were the words which showed our feelings at the prom that night.

In the twelfth grade, we had our big money drive for our Senior trip. We also put on a play called LIFE WITH FATHER. All the members of the cast suffered a sudden case of that dreaded disease, "stage fright", on February 14.

Finally, at Easter, we counted our money and boarded the bus for New York at 2:30 in the morning. Of course, no one got any sleep that morning, but the rest of the holiday was spent napping.

It would be logical to think that with a trip to New York our minds would be concentrated on only that, but they weren't. This was our year to sit back and enjoy the fruits of the Junior labor on the prom. It was quite a relief to go to the prom rested, instead of fatigued.

At last our big day came--graduation. A few tears were shed, but despite the outward appearance, we were all happy. We had at last finished the walk down the aisle that we had started six years before.

If there is ever a time that a class needs competent officers, it is during their junior year. At this time it is necessary for the president and vice-president to encourage the full co-operation of their classmates; it is necessary that the secretary and treasurer be accurate and alert in keeping the class's financial records.

Meeting these requirements, these officers were chosen by the Junior class.

David Wright and Jimmy were the only candidates for President. It was a very close battle with only ten votes as a difference between the winner and loser.

The winning platform was:

1. Quieter halls.
2. More Speakers.
3. A topic poll for speakers.
4. To see if Central could obtain a Coke machine.

F.H.A.

The Senior Home Economics students are preparing themselves for the big step over the "threshold to adult living." We have been assessing our values and determining our goals through study and discussion in class and in the F. H. A. This year's program in the Central Chapter centers on the state and national project "You and Your Values." Monthly meetings touch on different aspects of this theme. In class we have touched upon philosophy, psychology and genetics in trying to reach our goal of self-understanding. We read about and discussed such subjects as honesty, scholarship, overcoming fears, traffic safety, drinking, religion, education beyond high school, early marriage, careers and applying for a job. Good management of time, energy and resources is a skill to be valued; therefore, we learn that use of foods on hand, which are inexpensive and easily prepared, will meet nutritional requirements and appeal to our families. We learn to eliminate unnecessary steps without sacrificing quality in all homemaking tasks, and we learn the value of making the most of what we already have. In addition to study of books by well-known authorities, we learn from persons in the community, such as ministers and Health Department personnel, the responsibilities of marriage and parenthood. All this is in anticipation of the day when the dream of a future home becomes a reality and a good way of life.

The Future Farmers of America planned a big year. They hoped to meet the requirements necessary in order to become a standard chapter. Upon meeting the requirements, the chapter will be eligible to send delegates to the state convention at Blacksburg in June. They have also planned various ways to earn money. At each meeting an outstanding speaker was invited to take on the duties of his profession.

Junior Prom

What a gala occasion! Amid the colors of purple and gold the Corsairs furnished the music for the Juniors' and Seniors' ROME ADVENTURE. How impressed we all were with the elaborately decorated fountain and favors that carried out this colorful theme.

In a chariot were the king, Albert LeCato, and queen, Jane Johnson. Everyone cheered for the prince, David Wright and princess, Ann Henry Davis. All of this represented a wonderful night, May 3, 1963.

Senior Prom

The Eastern Shore Yacht and Country Club was the setting for the 1964 Prom. The Juniors said goodbye to the Seniors by wishing them-----
